The cucumber must first be cured in a brine before it can be made into sweet or sour pickles. Use soft water for making the brine. Place in a large wooden tub
Eight pounds of salt,
Twenty-five quarts of water.
Stir to dissolve thoroughly and then do, not wash the cucumbers. Place them in the brine and then place a large wooden cover on top to keep the cucumbers under the water for ten days. Remove the cucumbers, wash in plenty of clear water. Now grade for size, using those

Dress Notes

Tunic Popular

The circular effect of peplum or tunic is more strongly introduced in the fashion showings of the week. A smart tailored satin is allover embroidered in lighter shade in ratine' embroidery and has a shallow ripple and deep tunic both circular. Brilliant vevets in such colors as rose, sapphire and jade are prominently shown for evening wear. Very gorgeous evening frock with combination of metal coth, metal lace and metal brocade are noticed in the public showings.

Very handsome effects for evening result from the combination of the slip of colored metal brocade with the beaded chiffon overdress. Fur trimmed velvets are being featured for street wear.

The absolutely dlain semi-fitted bodice is combined with full gathered skirt.

Hip drapings and panier effects are accentuated in the youthful taffeta evening frocks.

Charming divetyn combinations are introduced, duvetyn with satin, with Georgette and with metal cloth.

Heavy metal brocades are veiled in colored chiffon.

Over the shoulder effects are talked of in evening gowns.

Short sleeves seem to be growing in popularity; many are shown on duvetyn street models.

The haramed line of tunic and underskirt is more popular than ever.

Advice to Lovelorn BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am of a jealous temperament and a young woman with whom I am in love nearly drives me mad sometimes by flirting with other men, but I try to hide my jealousy under an attitude of dignified reserve to show my disapproval of her conduct, and she only laughs at me, and tells me that I only succeed in making an assof myself when I try to show my disapproval of her unbecoming conduct and she only laughs at me, and tells me that I only succeed in making an assof myself when I try to show my disapproval of her unbecoming conduct I do not like to be laughed at, and I should like to know how I can impress this young woman with the fact that there are some things that I will not stand for if she is to retain my friendship and respect.

The trouble with you is that you

The trouble with you is that you probably do make an ass of yourself, but you are so taken up with the idea of maintaining an attitude of "dignified reserve" that you are unable to see that you are in reality making a spectacle of yourself for all the world to laugh at. The young woman, having the saving grace of a sense of humor along with her proclivities for flirting with other men and making you miserable, sees right through your doubtless highly amusing efforts to impress her with the weight of your displeasure. You see, if there were any real danger of her losing your "friendship and respect." you would not be so anxious to impress on her mind the importance of these commodities. You are suffering from an exaggreated ego. Remember the world is full of men, and there are doubtless a million specimens who are fully as desirable in the eyes of young women as you are particularly when you are trying to be dignified and sternly disapproving of other people's conduct. The trouble with you is that you

Mr dear Miss Fairfax:

We are writing to know how a young girl may love a young man and yet not show it, when she is in his company almost daily, and if she can win his admiration without she letting him have the least idea to the she will be a young girl shows her love before a yilling man, he saill care less for her than H. she will be a girl should show her love first or wait until he in some way returns it.

Dear Miss Fairfax.—Recently I met a young woman from Lawrenceville. I carried her to the movies one night. She has since returned home and I should like to know if I would be proper for me to write to her since I should like to continue the acquaintanceship thus formed.

Surely it is perfectly proper for you to write to her if you want to continue to keep in touch with the young woman. Whether she cares to carry on a correspondence with you is carry on a correspondence with you another matter altogether.

A DISCOVERY THAT BENEFITS MANKIND

Two discoveries have added greatly to human welfare.

In 1835 Newton originated the vacuum process for condensing milk with cane sugar to a semi-liquid form.

In 1883 Horlick at Racine, Wis., discovered how to reduce milk to a dry powder form with extract of malted grains, without cane sugar.

This product HORLICK named Malted Milk. (Name since copied by others.) Its nutritive value, digestibility and ease of preparation (by simply stirring in water) and the fact that it keeps in any climate, has proved of much value to mankind as an ideal food-drink from infancy to old age.

March winds and April showers Bring forth May flowers. But Lady Daffodil and Miss Crocus had never heard that little rhyme, so when on morning they peped out from their winter covering and felt the sharp March winds they quickly pulled in their little heads and went to sleep again. It was a long time before they again awoke and this time their pretty little faces did not feel the sharp sting of old March, but the soft patter of April's tears, and the big sky above them was dark. "We are up too early," asid Lady Daffodil to her cousin, Miss Crocus, "It isn't time for spring, after all. How strange that we should awake before our time to bloom." Little Lady Crocus, who always listened to her cousin, thought it must be time for her to show herself even if the tears of April did fall on her, but she witndrew her head and went to sleep again. On and on they slept this time until one morning the gentle South Wind came along and called for them to awake. Get some good-sized pie dishes, and into these put two or three inches of sand, well moistened. Then secure a sand, well moistened. Then secure a number of glass shades or these, empty jam jars, tumblers and anything of this sort may be employed. During the daytime the cut flowers are used in the ordinary way about the house, but at night they are all collected from th vases. Push the stalks of the blossoms into the damp sand, and then cover the groups of flowers, placing the dishes away on the shelf.

Next day the flowers may be taken out and placed about the house again, and at night they are returned to the dishes. Any one who has not tried this plan will be surprised how much longer the flowers will last than if disness. Any one who has not tried this plan will be surprised how much longer the flowers will last than if they are left for days in the vases. When the petals of the flowers are of a thick nature—such is so often the case with those produced by builbs, like hyacinths—an even simpler way is to put all the blossoms in a dish of water each night. The flowers are just put into the dish, and water is then poured over them, and the whole thing is placed aside. If this practice is followed it will very much lengthen the life of the bossoms.

Another plan is that of putting the blossoms into tins, when they are not actually in use. It is important to see that the lids fit tightly, and when the blossoms are placed in boxes they

Here again the flowers may be simply put into tins at night and brought into the vases during the day. On the other hand, this is a splendid way of keeping flowers for a special event. If you shut up some fresh flowers in a tin and keep them in a cool place you will find at the end of several weeks that the blossoms are still in nice condition.

Keeping Flowers
Some Suggestions.

Here are one or two simple plans whereby all kinds of cut blossoms may be kept in a nice fresh condition for weeks.

blossoms are still in nice condition.
In many cases, by the use of camphor in the water in the vases, it is possible to lengthen the life of the cut blossoms. Put a small lump into the water of each vase, and this, when dissolved, will have a wonderful effect in stimulating the cells of the stalk to draw up moisture. A weak solution of camphor and water, slightly warmed, is also valuable for the reviving of willed blossoms.
